DID YOU KNOW that Col. A.S. Cutts who is customarily misclassified as but another outstanding Virginia artillerist of the Civil War, was really a native of Pulaski County, Ga. He was the prime organizer of a Georgia battery unit, The Sumter Flying Artillery, who fought courageously in Virginia for the duration of the War. He put the War behind him in 1865, and returned to Americus, Ga., where he dedicated himself to the rebuilding of that community. At Col. Cutts' end, one of the most fitting tributes to him read: "Always held in highest esteem in Georgia, and reflecting in peace the glory of his achievements in war, he died in Americus, Georgia, in ripeness of age and honors."

DID YOU KNOW that the first submarine warfare was conducted during the Civil War?

THE DUSTIN MASSACRE IN MINNESOTA, 1863

The Sioux Indians were on a rampage in Minnesota in 1863. On June 29, 1863, the family of Amos DUSTIN set out from Marysville township in Central Minnesota with a yoke of oxen, and wagon filled with household goods. They traveled by way of Waverly and had dinner with an Aaron COCHRAN family. In late afternoon near the present village of Howard Lake, they were ambushed by Indians. The startled oxen ran into a tree, broke loose and returned to the Cochran home after a time. A number of people came to investigate the next morning and found the scene of a tragedy in early afternoon. Kate Dustin, wife of Amos, was found behind a log with two living children. Amos, age 28 was shot, scalped and his hands cut off. His mother, Jeanetter Dustin, age 54, and a son Robert, age 4, were also killed. Kate was shot, one arrow going through and projecting under the breast bone (A part of that arrow is preserved by the Minn. Historical Society). The baby, Albert, age 2, was thrown into the bushes and soon became quiet. Alma, covered by the body of her grandmother, was not discovered by the Indians. The Indians feasted on what they could find in the wagon, then slashed the bedding, started a fire and fled into the woods. Kate was able to find Alma under her dead grandmother's body and Albert in the bushes. They remained hidden until discovered the next day. They were brought back to Waverly, the children recovered, but Kate, age 24, died of her wounds and the four victims were buried together. Several markers and monuments have been erected including a large highway memorial marker near Howard Lake. This was dedicated June 29, 1963, the one hundredth anniversary of the tragedy with three generations of descendants taking part.

A CIVIL WAR LETTER

New York, June 16, 1863

"Persia"

We wrote you last on May 11. Business since then has been active for so late in the season, and supplies on hand are more reduced than they usually are. The invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania by the Confederate Armies, the news of which has reached us this morning, will probably stop trading entirely, and the resumption of business will depend on the result of the battles which must be fought soon.

Last month has been outstanding for extraordinary activity on the stock exchange, accompanied by a great rise in all speculative values. The operations of the clearing house have risen to $75,000,000 in one day, and on the average have exceeded $50,000,000 daily; where as during the busiest times which preceded the crisis of 1857 they never exceeded $25,000,000. The values which have always been considered as offering a safe and solid investment have increased little or not at all in proportion to gold and the prosperity heightened by the interests they represent. Speculations have increased especially in stocks of companies which have never paid and which until recently were considered as having little or no real value. Stocks which sold two years ago for from 5-20% have soared to 100-140% 140%. Gold has been almost entirely neglected by speculators and has risen momentarily to 140 since yesterday morning. However, it has again given way to more numerous transactions with sudden fluctuations which will continue as long as the situation remains critical and uncertain as it is at the moment.

The imports of the month past are in goods of . . .

This is the translation of a letter written in French, sent from N. Y. to Paris during the Civil War. The letter, carried with pre-paid markings and no stamps, will be shown at one of our "show and tell" sessions along with a picture of the ship, "Persia" on which it was carried.

The article about the DUSTIN MASSACRE and the above CIVIL WAR LETTER were submitted by member RUSSELL CARR.
