Dear Members and Friends,

As a new day dawns and the flowers peak through the earth after the dormant winter months, let's be receptive to all of our senses when committing ourselves to genealogical research.

- SEE Look beyond what you're seeing for the first time when visiting the 'family home', library or public records office and imagine your ancestor chopping wood for the families' heat, cooking over an open hearth, plowing a field, churning butter, etc.
- HEAR Listen to all the family stories and tall tales and sort out the myth from the truth.
- SMELL Ah, the 'sweet smell of success' when you've finally found that elusive ancestor.
- TOUCH that family bible where names and dates of births, marriages and deaths have been recorded by generations from the past for generations of the future.
- TASTE a family recipe or the many experiences of your research for generations past as you record your precious research for future descendants thru charts (noting names, dates and places of events), diaries, recordings or dialog for a publication.

Finally, SHARE your knowledge and research with other new-found family members and researchers and the gift that you present to others will come back to you two-fold.

Happy Researching,

Ralyne E. Westenhofer

ABRAHAM LEFEVRE I, II, III
Straightening out the kinks in a muddled record

We have all found that correcting mistakes and assumptions that have been made in years past is one of the most frustrating and exasperating tasks there is in genealogy. Abraham LeFevre of western Virginia is a typical example of the problems encountered. [If there is a 'typical' example.]

We first find Abraham in Washington County, Virginia, where he married 25 August 1795 Molly Brack. This is recorded in the county marriage records, the minister being Jacob Link. It is obvious that the name LeFever can be spelled in many different ways and it certainly is: from Layfevers to LaFaver to Lefeavours, etc. But one might think that 'Molly Brack' would not be a problem. However, one finds Molly, Polly, Mary Magdalene--and then it turns out that the name is more usually spelled 'Brock'. Then consider 'Jacob Link'--or should it be Zink or Sink. It is not too difficult to cope with a variety of spellings for LeFevre as long as the name always starts with 'L', but searching for a name which may begin with L or S or Z can be very time-consuming.

Now think about the question of Abraham when the records show that there is both a Jr and a Sr. How now do we make sure we have the right one? As the years go on, Abraham Sr. will die and very likely the man who was Abraham Jr. now becomes Abraham Sr. and so on down the line.

One family genealogist coping with this situation came to a very imaginative conclusion. Abraham Jr apparently was about 13 years old when his father gave him power of attorney to complete a land sale. Obviously he was a very smart boy for his father to have such confidence in his judgment!

The earliest record we have found for 'Abraham LeFever' in Washington Co., Virginia, was in May of 1781 when he was listed as keeping a Tipling House. At the June 19th Court he was granted leave to have an Ordinary in his own house, 'he Giving Bond and Security as the Law Directs'. But nothing is said about whether he was Sr. or Jr. and we can't be sure. Here is what we know:

Abraham I (wife Elizabeth) was given a grant of 200 acres on May 3, 1784, on the South Fork of the Holston River in Washington Co. On 9 July 1789 he was living in Augusta Co., Va. when he gave power of attorney to Abraham Jr. of Washington Co. to convey this 200 acres to Philip Barick and this was exercised on 15 November 1791 in Washington Co. On 21 June 1796 Abraham LeFever (and Elizabeth his wife) of Augusta Co. for the sum of 110 pounds sold to Samuel Huff a parcel of land on the waters of the Falling Spring, a branch of the Middle River, [in Augusta

Co.] containing 280 acres first granted to Phillip Barrick (10 April 1781) and by him conveyed to Abraham Lefever. [The bounds went from a Black Oak and hicory on a hillside to a red oak, a white oak, hicory saplings, etc. The only solid clue as to this location is mention of Lewis Mourey's line.] Abraham Lafavour and his wife Elizabeth both signed this (x). That is the last trace we have found of Abraham I and his wife Elizabeth.

Abraham II seems to have been living in Washington Co., Va., in 1789/91. It is not clear whether he is the one who had had the Tipling House ten years earlier or not. In 1795 Abraham (II) and wife Catharine sold 171 acres on the middle fork of the Holston to John Jamison. [Again we have an assortment of trees to mark the bounds including a walnut, buckeye and poplars. It was on a line with James Thompsons old Patent tract.] Abraham II was able to sign his name although his wife Catn. signed (x). The witnesses were James Thompson, Joseph Cole and John Todd. The indenture was proved by the oath of James Thompson on 19 January 1796 and on 16 February by Joseph Cole. John Todd didn't give his oath until the June Court in the year 1800.

The will of Abraham II is recorded in Wayne Co, Ky, [Book A] written on 8 October 1807, proved at the January Court in 1808. [Pursuant to an Act entitled an Act to authorize Certain Records of the Wayne County Court to be transcribed, it is entered on 9 June 1840]. The will names wife Catareenah who was to receive everything during her lifetime. Son David was to be the executor and after Catareenah's death he could either keep the land and pay each of the other children an equal share of the value or sell it and divide the proceeds equally among them all. The other children were Abraham Jr, Catareenah, Andrew, Jacob, Elizabeth and Sarah. [The compiler of the published abstracts also includes another son named Thomas, but this name does not appear in the 1840 transcription as recorded by the county clerk.] There were still Lefevers in Wayne County in 1810 and 1820.

Abraham III [named in his father's will above] is the man who married in Washington Co., Va., on 25 August 1795 Polly Brack, apparently more commonly known to the family as Molly or Polly or Mary Brock. An 1884 account of Morgan, Brown and Monroe Cos. Indiana, has a biography in Baker township, Morgan Co. for Isaac Lefaver which states that Isaac is the third of the eight children of Abraham and Mary (Brock) Lefaver, natives of Virginia, who moved to Wayne Co, Ky, about 1806; ca 1816 the family went to Washington Co, Ind; then to Morgan Co. around 1823. The family was active in establishing the Methodist church there.

Now, where did the first Abraham LeFevre come from? Does he belong to Isaac LeFevre of Manakintown, Va? Or Isaac LeFevre of Lancaster Co. Penn? Or none of the above. HELP! Need PROOF!

DESCENDANTS OF SAMUEL STURTEVANT
Compiled by: Robert Hunter Sturtevant
Printed by Texian Press, Waco, Texas
First Printing - July 1986
Library of Congress Catalog Card Number: 86-50436

If your name is spelled Sturtevant, Sturdevant, Sturtivant, or Sturdivant, the four most common spellings of this name, or you have one of the sixty-nine variations of the name found among the soldiers and sailors of the Revolutionary War, this thick book is a gold mine.

There are no page numbers in the book. All references are by an index number assigned to an individual's name or by an indexed reference to a family name. It has the unique feature of showing each indexed individual's "lineage" back to Samuel, the immigrant ancestor of most Sturtevants in America.

In 1640, Samuel, appears as a "Townsmen of Plymouth", a "freeman and voter". It is thought, however, that he came from England in his teens as an apprentice or an indenture.

The book spans fourteen generations, and makes mention of the development of the Sturtevant Car (1904-1908) and the Sturtevant Aeroplane (1915-1917).

MARRIED

From the Napoleon, Ohio, Northwest News

STEVENS — AMES: On March 21st, 1893, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. L. E. Ames, assisted by Revs. W. V. Thomas, of Defiance, and M. L. Donahey, of Napoleon, Mr. M. B. Stevens, of Defiance, and Miss Ella A. Ames, of Napoleon.

It was our pleasure to be one of the invited guests to partake of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Ames upon the occasion of the marriage of their daughter as above. Quite a number of guests were present from Defiance, the home of the groom; Wabash, Indiana, and other places, and the occasion was one of pleasure and entertainment throughout. The repast served was sumptuous, and everything was done to please the inner as well as the outer man. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents. They left on the evening train for Chicago and other points on a short visit, when they will return to Defiance, their future home, carrying with them the well wishes of a large circle of friends. During the ceremony the father of the bride made some very appropriate and wholesome remarks upon the marriage relations, part of which we append by request. Mr. Ames said:

The occasion on which we have assembled to-night though so frequent in the various circles of human society, is scarcely second in importance to any that transpire in the widest range of civil or social life. The conjugal relation is coeval with the human family. The same Almighty hand that settled the foundations of the universe ordained the institution of marriage, and signalized it in the highest degree as the initiatory rite to all the sacred relationships and the purest, most permanent and most elevating enjoyments of which human beings are capable in this world of sin and sorrow. The very first man and the very first woman were married. And the heavenly Father solemnized the nuptials. There were five persons in all at the wedding, viz: the bride and groom, and the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. The amazing dignity of the administrator, the immaculate purity of those joined in holy wedlock, together with the countless charms of the beautiful garden of Eden, must have been forcibly suggestive of that state of domestic bliss and home enjoyments which are possibly attainable, and attainable only in the domestic relation as regulated under the solemn ordinance of marriage. It would therefore be no ideal strain to conceive the perpetuity of that peaceful flow of connubial happiness which, in the absence of disobedience and sin, would have been as natural and uninterrupted as the flow of the deep river to the ocean. Hence, from this original pattern of married life we may borrow our conceptions of the special characteristics of the domestic realm, the place of all on earth the most sacred and satisfying, "Home, home, sweet home, etc." Though we are not to expect consummate perfection in those who enter this divinely constituted relation, yet as at the first to now and always, should there be one man and one woman joined by the manifest approbation and approval of God, and in the spirit of love and loyalty. The exclusive duality of this relation is absolutely enjoined by the original pattern. In this regard there has never been any modification or change by divine counsel or permission. Polygamy is a positive violation of the spirit and letter of the holy ordinance, debasing to the parties involved in the relation, and nullifying the divinely established unity by which the twain are one flesh. Any departure in this respect from the simple original pattern as given by God himself has in all ages been fruitful in domestic unhappiness, and a direct tendency to the ultimate subversion of the beneficent designs of our creator in the establishment and perpetuity of the family relation. No countenance, therefore, to an evil of such magnitude should be given, either from a religious, social or civil point of view. There is ample ground for the gravest apprehension that the great American family will at no distant day be forced to grapple with this giant iniquity in a civil and decisive conflict, and purge itself from an evil sufficient to cause the blush of shame to mantle the cheek of every American citizen.

Allow me to speak of the permanency of the marriage relation, which is as clearly indicated from a biblical standpoint as perhaps any fundamental principle in the whole system of social and moral ethics. There is an ominous silence in the Old Testament scriptures in regard to any provision for nullifying the marriage contract. The great Lawgiver has no where enjoined or encouraged under any circumstances the dissolution of this most sacred engagement by civil legislation, or the voluntary choice of one or both of the parties involved. By the plainest implication the relation is expected to be perpetuated until it shall have expired by natural limitation in the death of one of the parties. And in virtue of this most important consideration from the scriptural view of the marriage covenant, the family institution of all others is invested with transcendent interests and personal obligations. As an institution of God it is a thing of permanence not to be annulled by human enactments or changed by the prejudices or caprice of men. Having its origin in the necessities of the race, formulated and guarded by divine wisdom, adapted alike to all ages of the world, and to the various and varying characters of men, it should be honored by a lifelong devotion to the many personal duties growing out of the marriage covenant and by mutual fidelity to each other as husband and wife. As a religious ordinance, therefore, parties proposing to enter the marriage relation should have the fear of God before their eyes and a personal consciousness of the divine authority of this word as their rule of life and conduct. And if they have faith in the doctrines of christianity, whatever duties are imposed upon husbands and wives in the holy scriptures, they engage to obey by the very act of contracting marriage; and especially the registered vows of both the parties made unto God, when rightly interpreted, require them to abide by all those laws with which He has guarded the institution, to love and cherish each other until death.

STEVENS FUNERAL SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Funeral Services of Physician Who Passed Away Yesterday
Will be Held at Baptist Church

Dr. M. B. Stevens, aged 71, died at his home on Fifth street, this city, October 19th, at 2:20 p.m., after an illness of 8 months. The funeral will be held at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The many friends of Dr. Stevens will be deeply interested in a brief sketch of his life. It was one full of devotion both to his country and his fellow men, and although he has passed to the Great Beyond, he is yet with us in our memories.

He was one of those persons whose generous impulses often impose on him burdens not easy to bear, one whose sympathy held him long upon the scene of anguish and distress. He seemed the genius of fidelity in the prosecution of the duties of his mission.

We think of Luke the physician carrying his soothing ministrations to Paul in the dungeons of Nero; and lo, here in our midst was one, who, after the lapse of ages, kept the scutcheon of the healer unsullied amid his many cares; a prince among the brothers of a guild that cannot be too highly honored.

Merari Bunajah Stevens was born March 14, 1845, his boyhood and youth being spent in Tyrone, Mich. At the age of 18 he accompanied his father to New York and in 1863 they enlisted in Co. L, 8th New York heavy artillery, and later fought in the battles of Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Hatcher's Run and were present at the fall of Richmond.

At the close of the war, Dr. Stevens returned to Fenton, Mich., and began the study of medicine. After two years he entered the office of Dr. W. B. Fox at Parshallville for a short time, then he entered the University of Michigan, graduating in 1869. He then took a two years' course in pharmacy at the same college, spending the intervening summer with his former preceptor, Dr. Fox, at Byron, Mich. He then took a special course in surgery in Bellview, N.Y., and after graduating there, came to Defiance, where he remained until his death.

Successful from the first during his 40 years of practice here, the doctor achieved a well-merited reputation as an able general practitioner and highly skillful surgeon. Indeed he retained a degree of eminence that placed him at the head of his profession, having been called upon to operate in the most difficult cases of surgery.

In 1870 he united in marriage to Miss Irene Boyce, of Fenton, Mich., who died 3 years later leaving one son, Harvey B. In 1876, the doctor married Miss Nettie Brower, one son, Harry B., coming to bless this union. In 1883 the doctor married Miss Ella Ames of Napoleon. Three sons, Gale A., Edwin Burr and Frank B., were born to them.

For 59 years Dr. Stevens was a member of the Baptist church, and was a member of the local G. A. R., holding office of surgeon in that body ever since his arrival in the city.

Five sons, one brother, one sister and his devoted wife survive him.

And now that his steps have carried him beyond our horizon, let us be thankful for the privilege of weeping and waiting at the portal through which he has so triumphantly passed.

The members of the medical profession of this city, G. A. R., and National Union Society will be present in large numbers at the funeral services.

BELOVED MAN IS LAID TO REST

Defiance, Ohio, Crescent News, October, 1916

Outpouring of Friends Tells How Heavy the "Blow" has Fallen

After fitting services had been held, the remains of Dr. M. B. Stevens, who for many years had been active in religious, medical and civic circles of the city, were lowered into the Earth at Riverside cemetery Sunday afternoon, while tears and sobs told of the regret which reigned because of the enforced parting.

The services were in charge of Rev. Dr. B. W. Slagle, who for forty years had been a close friend of the departed man, assisted him.

At the house there was a scriptural reading and the offering of a short prayer, by Rev. M. Erler.

Dying Request Granted

In his last sickness Dr. Stevens had asked that the church quartette sing "Nearer My God to Thee" when the time came to conduct his obsequies, and this request was complied with. As the strains of the beautiful melody and the tender words floated out over the assembled audience they carried a comforting influence.

E. J. Webb, who came to Defiance forty years ago with Dr. Stevens, read the obituary, in which was set forth an appreciation of the man as a physician, Christian friend and a member of society. The scripture lesson was taken from Second Corinthians 5:10 as follows "For We Must All Appear Before the Judgment Seat of Christ." The topic for the funeral oration was "The First Tribunal."

The G. A. R. members read the burial service of that order, an impressive function. The church was packed for the services and it took twenty minutes for the assembled persons to pass the casket.

Express Their Appreciation

Many beautiful floral offerings were received. The Board of Trustees of the Baptist church, in consideration of the many years that the doctor had given to helping the congregation, sent one. The National Union sent another as did the G. A. R. post.

The pall bears were: Henry Helpman, A. B. Davis and M. A. Bell, for the G. A. R.; Frank Whitney and Theodore Ensign for the Baptist church, and Earl Couch, who has been a close friend of the family for years.

The flower bearers were: A. King, John Myers, James Benner and George Solly.

MIXED IDENTITY

(This story was submitted to Heritage Quest for their Difficult Research Problems page. To date it has not been published.)

My grandfather, Michael Vincek, came from the village of Nova Bela in the Austro-Hungarian Empire (once Slovakia and now Poland), on January 25, 1902, aboard the S.S. Pretoria. He was 14 years old.

Through the years, I have been able to piece together his life story by jogging family memories, searching out records, digging up old photos, and trips to visit and talk with people in the places he lived. But one point remained elusive. My mother and three uncles all agreed that they remember their father saying he went back to Nova Bela to visit his mother. Unfortunately, none of them agreed on when.

Compared to past research problems, I thought this one would be easy. I sent to the Immigration and Naturalization Service for a copy of Grandpa's Petition for Citizenship, which I hoped would show his last entry into the states. And indeed it did. Michael Vincek had stated that he entered for the second time on September 5, 1910, arriving in New York City on board the SS Cleveland. Gee, that was easy!

To verify this info, and to see if any additional information might be listed, I sent off to the National Archives for a copy of the passenger list on which his name appeared. To my dismay, they replied: A SEARCH WAS MADE BUT THE RECORDS YOU REQUESTED WERE NOT FOUND. From past experience, I knew this meant either the researcher didn't pick up on a misspelling of the name or my information was wrong. But why would Grandpa have been so specific about a date and a ship's name? Perhaps he had put down the date he left Europe....but according to the Morton Allan directory...the SS Cleveland did indeed arrive in New York on September 5, 1910. To be doubly sure, I checked the New York Times microfilm for that date, and it was listed.

Ever since I began genealogy research, there have been two unwritten laws frustrating me:

1. That one question will beget ten new questions
2. A "sure thing" will turn into a baffling mystery.

I sent another inquiry to the National Archives listing all possible variations of his name, and received the same NO RECORD reply. The following year, I had a wonderful opportunity to go to Salt Lake City, and placed Grandpa's mystery voyage on top of my research list.

After familiarizing myself with the marvelous LDS Family History Library, I started with the passenger lists, and quickly found the correct microfilm for the SS Cleveland. There was nothing even resembling the name Michael Vincek on the list. So I tried the soundex files (a really amazing system!). I found his first arrival (it was so easy, and to think I had spent so many months on this research item a few years ago), but nothing else. It didn't make sense....I had to be overlooking something.

I was tempted to just let it go. I could just use the information on the Petition for Citizenship, it was certainly a valid source. But of course, "the quest for the facts" won out. I started all over again the next day, meticulously looking through all those microfilms again, trying to find that illusive clue.

Up to this point, I had been concentrating on the spelling of names, looking for a variation that might just be grandpa. Now I started back through the list checking the column that shows an address in the country from which the passenger came. I found several Nova Bela listings, but the names didn't mean anything.....until Joseph Kristofek. Joseph Kristofek was married to grandpa's sister Katherine and from my notes on the family, Katherine and Joseph had lived in Pennsylvania for several years, had a daughter, and went back to live in Nova Bela, with her parents in 1899. In fact, this was one of the reasons why Michael originally left to come to America. The little farm house was very crowded and food was scarce.

It's possible that Joseph did come back over, but I remembered hearing something many years ago about Grandpa being recruited into the Hungarian army and having to run away in the middle of the night to get back to his wife in America.

Back at the hotel that night I wrote a letter to my uncle detailing all of the above, and asking if it were possible that grandpa came back to America using his brother-in-law's papers. When his reply came, he said that he did remember his father explaining to the Judge, when applying for citizenship papers, that he didn't want to serve in the Hungarian Army, so he used another name to get back to America. My uncle also remembered more of the story....while Grandpa was in Nova Bela, the Hungarian government began a draft. All the young men were required to sign up for five years. Grandpa was no exception. He was forced to register for five years, and they took his papers. That night, Joseph hitched up the horses and took Michael across the border so he could leave, using Joseph's papers. I also gained some other details regarding the reason for grandpa making the trip to Europe, etc. Thus proving that asking the "right" question makes all the difference.

I'm glad I didn't "accept" the information on Grandpa's citizenship petition. The story I finally unearthed was far more interesting and makes my portrait of Grandpa much more exciting.

THE PILOT

BLAIR, WASHINGTON COUNTY, NEBRASKA
VOLUME XXVI

MONDAY SEPTEMBER 20, 1897

LOCAL NEWS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Thompson, on Friday morning, a girl. Mrs. Thompson has been a very sick woman and for several days her friends entered but little hope of her recovery.

The Leon W. Washburn circus failed to materialized. The nearest we can learn of the why not is that the outfit was stranded up in South Dakota and that everything belonging to the circus is under attachment.

The attack of yellow fever seems to be spreading quite rapidly and considerably in the southern states. Several new cases come to light daily regardless of the strict quarantine. Papers have been compelled to suspend publication in many southern cities and groceries and provisions are obtained from a department established by the city officials. A frost at this time in the southern clime would be a God-send.

Quite a large number of poultrymen met at H. H. Reed's store last Saturday and formed a temporary organization by electing S. W. Stewart temporary president and Chas. Farnham temporary secretary.

The following are a few of the Blair-rites who joined the Ak-Sar-Ben last Monday night and are requested by the Blair Republicans to pay their meat bill: F. H. Claridge, L. L. Lantry, W. K. Fowler, Harry Higley, E. J. Farr, Herman Aye, W. H. Belknap, Clark O'Hanion, Victor Wolff, Rodel Root, C. C. Colby, W. Thone, C. Selleck, D. Z. Mummert, Dr. Mortlock, G. W. Newton, Dr. Beecher, T. E. Stevens, J. A. Freeland, D. F. Cook, W. L. Jounson, Chas. Miller, John McKay, H. Taylor, L. A. Mangold, D. C. VanDeusen, Burke Carrigan, F. W. Kenny, Sr., E. C. Pierce, W. J. Cook, Frank Kinney, Wm. Arndt, Robert Smock, Jr. McQuarries, E. R. Stewart, F. S. Howell, A. H. Culley, J. E. Shafer, E. C. Jackson, Wm. Wilkins, W. Gaudrie, J. H. Flock, Wm. Quinlan, J. W. Henderson.

The many friends and acquaintances of Frank B. Kincaid will be sorry to learn of his death, which occurred at Willow Creek, Nev., on Friday morning, the 21st Ins. The deceased, though for but a few years a resident of Humboldt county, endeared himself by his many admirable traits of character to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. Mr. Kincaid was but 33 years of age and was a native of Missouri. He came to this county from Washington county, Nebraska.--The Silver State, Winnemucca, Nev., May 25, 1897.

NEWS OF NEBRASKA

Lincoln, Sept. 18--The governor has received the resignation of State Senator John M. Osborne of Pawnee City. The resignation is caused by the candidacy of Senator Osborne for the office of county treasurer of his county.

Falls City, Sept. 17--Four days ago action was begun to foreclose on the farm of John Street, an aged veteran of the war. Yesterday he drove his wife from the premises, set fire to all the buildings and then blew off his head with a shotgun. Brooding over the threatened loss of his farm supposed to have unbalanced his mind.

Juniata, Sept. 19--Miss Emma Scofield, a 17-year old girl living with her parents on a farm three miles west of here, was most brutally assaulted by a well dressed stranger yesterday. A man answering his description was seen in Juniata, and a posse has been organized and is in hot pursuit. If he is captured it is not unlikely he will be lynched.
